MK HISTORY

Sometime in the distant past - likely before the United States even existed, a belief system came into existence which asserted, essentially, "If I seek knowledge, and, in order to get this knowledge, I need to kill (sacrifice) other human beings to prove or disprove some theory I have, then it is acceptable that I do this because I am advancing knowledge (science) and so what I am doing is not wrong because it benefits "humanity".

A classic story was the German (Nazi) doctor who wondered what would happen if a pregnant woman was prevented from delivering her baby. Although the answer should be obvious to anyone with a bit of common sense, scientists need actual experimental proof. So he captured a near term pregnant woman, tied her down and strapped her legs together. Then, he calmly sat in his comfy chair with his notebook and observed: "(1) Female appears to be in distress; (2) Female dead - baby still alive; (3) Baby dead; (4) Conclusion: Experimental evidence clearly shows...". So, now he is satisfied and believes he did a good thing and "advanced scientific knowledge".

Actually, the Germans did lots of experiments. And, they did "advance science". However, they did not advance positive human evolution. Instead, their motivations lead us into the nightmare world we have today. But, they are far from finished. There is much more "research" to be done.

When the Nazi scientists took control of the United States at the end of World War II (which they actually won), they inherited new fertile ground and millions of unsuspecting people (test subjects) to continue their "great work".

Under the cloak of "Operation Paperclip" and with the protection of the newly passed National Security Act, they settled in and got right to work.

There were many projects in various areas, however, the best known human experiment project was "MK Ultra" (Mind Kontrol). If it was not for the Church Commission congressional investigation [1], we would never have known anything about any of this. In fact, those participating firmly believed that no one would ever learn what they did - which further stimulated them to commit horrendous acts with no restraint upon unsuspecting Americans.

NEW ORLEANS MK HISTORY

The Church Commission report specifically identifies three institutions in Louisiana involved in the original MK Ultra project. They are Tulane University, Louisiana State University (LSU) and Angola State Penitentiary (used as a source of "test animals"). However, this list is incomplete because we know that at least two of the three state mental hospitals, Southeast Louisiana Hospital and East Louisiana State Hospital were also involved.

Michael Traina, a psychologist working at Southeast Louisiana Hospital, reports that children from the hospital's Children's Unit were taken to Tulane University's secret laboratory in Covington, Louisiana - known as the "Primate Research Center" where they were put into a sealed room and exposed to radioactive materials and then returned to the hospital where they were covertly observed to study the effects of radiation on children. The kids were told that they were going on a "field trip". The Church Commission reports that there were 149 MK Ultra subprojects. However, this number is obviously low because this subproject has never been publicly acknowledged. Also, kids who survived the radiation experiments would likely be alive today and in their sixties and could sue if they found out about this.

East Louisiana Hospital was the location where inmates from Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola, Louisiana were taken - injected with designer cancer viruses created using Judyth Baker's [3] (Lee Oswald's mistress) formula assisted by Mary Sherman [4] using the then top secret linear particle accelerator at the US Public Health Service hospital in New Orleans. The inmates injected all died as predicted and those involved were all working for Tulane University.

MK Ultra in New Orleans was centered around Charity Hospital - later to be rendered useless by Hurricane Katrina. The hospital was divided into two wings - one for Tulane University and one for Louisiana State University (LSU). Each had their medical school across a street on either side of the hospital and both were covertly linked to the main hospital by underground tunnels.

New patient's charts were either stamped with "T" (Tulane) or "L" (LSU) and they retained this affiliation for life. The staff reported that you had a much higher probability of being used in some experiment if you were a Tulane patient.

Tulane University's medical school had a secret prison on the seventh floor. When the elevator opened on that floor, there was a real prison cell door blocking the way and likely smaller cells inside. Special clearance was required to go in and those held there would probably not leave alive. Cecile Martin, a woman working there at that time, reports seeing this when someone in the elevator was going to that floor. When she asked about what she had seen, she was cautioned she should forget what she saw. Reportedly, Tulane still has a secret prison, however it has been moved to a new, undisclosed, location.

Tulane's part in MK Ultra was under the direction of Dr. Heath, chief of psychiatry at that time. Thousands of Angola (Louisiana State Penitentiary) inmates were killed in the course of his many MK Ultra experiments. He is legendary in medical literature as the doctor who implanted the most electrodes in the brains of humans as well as his attempts to convert gay men to "normal" men by electrically stimulating pleasure centers in the brain while the men were locked in a room with prostitutes. These experiments all failed and likely contributed to the eventual removal of homosexuality from the official list of mental illnesses.

NEW ORLEANS DEEP STATE LINKS

New Orleans is a very unique city and holds many secrets. New Orleans was settled by the French and is older than the United States. It was named "New" Orleans after the city in France named "Orleans".

You probably know of New Orleans because of its famous Mardi Gras. You may think that a bunch of rich people enjoy parading on fancy floats in masks throwing beads. They do do that - but that is not all they do. These are secret clubs which have existed for well over one hundred years and many have links to the so called "Deep State" (formerly known as the "Shadow Government"). For example, the primary Mardi Gras crew, Rex, is operated from The Boston Club [5]. Many US Presidents have visited this club for a casual lunch when they were in town to chat with fellow insiders.

There are secret underground tunnels everywhere. Most are now unusable because they were flooded during hurricane Katrina. Downtown buildings physically touch each other and, although they represent completely different institutions, have secret doors which link them. For example, the Roosevelt Hotel - which existed since 1893 but was originally known as the Grunewald Hotel - has secret passages everywhere. A group of people may be seen entering a room, however, if you check that room you will find it empty because they all left through some secret hidden panel and could now be most anywhere. This is pretty common stuff in New Orleans.

The federal government absolutely loves New Orleans because it is so easy to "appear" and "disappear" unnoticed and remain totally anonymous. Once, when I was quite young, I happened to be on Camp Street around lunch time. A group of guys came out of a nameless building to cross the street going to some restaurant for lunch. They still had their government ID cards dangling around their neck and all the cards had green stripes (intelligence clearance). Of course, they did not know I had already broken the government ID card code as they smiled at me as we passed.

Tulane University is the center of secret government activities in New Orleans. Tulane is one of the founding members of the top secret Institute for Defense Analyses (IDA) which has only one client - the US Government. The IDA has direct links to DARPA, the Pentagon and many other high level agencies including the "Deep State". This relationship makes Tulane essentially "untouchable" - in more ways than one. For example, it reportedly uses "Blackwater" (professional assassins) agents on its campus to take care of any "problems".

This is only a tiny glimpse into the "city of secrets".

NEW ORLEANS BIOMEDICAL CORRIDOR

Operations at Charity Hospital stopped when hurricane Katrina impacted New Orleans. However, long before that event, Charity Hospital did not meet the minimum safety standards for a hospital. It operated on a temporary permit which was routinely renewed every year. However, the hospital was certified as a Level 1 Trauma center - the highest rating. If a US President had any medical issues while visiting New Orleans, he would have been taken to Charity Hospital.

Although only the basement and first floor were damaged by hurricane Katrina, the building can never be used for human habitation again because it was insulated with asbestos. This was normal when it was built but is prohibited today.

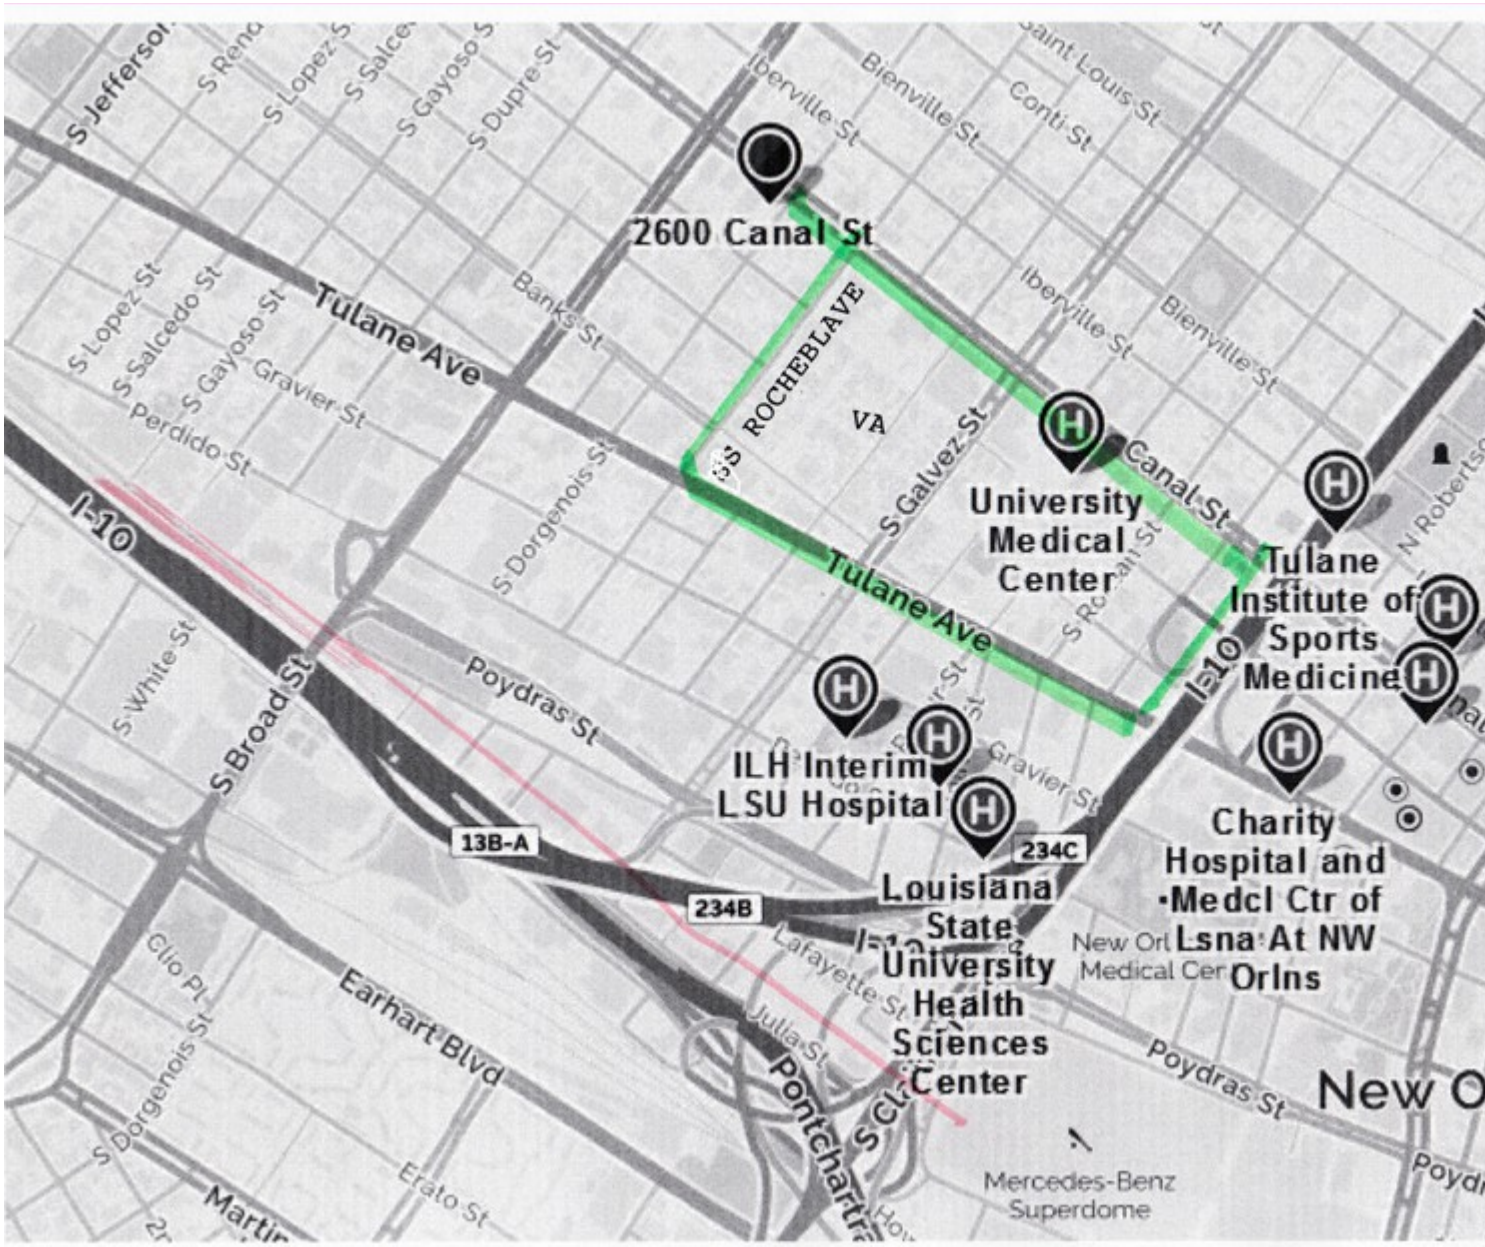

It took about eleven years to replace Charity. The replacement facility is known as the University Medical Center and is listed by the Secretary of State as a non profit (501c3) [8] organization operated by Louisiana State University. It also is certified as a Level 1 Trauma Center. Both LSU and Tulane doctors operate in this facility, however, just as both did in Charity Hospital. This place is essentially "Charity Hospital on steroids". Nothing has changed.

However, this is only part of the story.

Using their power of "imminent domain", the city of New Orleans confiscated about 68 acres of prime real estate. Houses, streets, everything was erased to clear land for the new medical project. Some houses were considered "historical landmarks" and had existed well over one hundred years. They were told, "Tough luck - get out or we will throw you out!"

Now, and we have mentioned this previously, before anything was built, it was common knowledge among the medical community that what was to be constructed would be "the center for human medical experiments for all of North America". It has now been built and that is its (secret) primary purpose.

This is an overview of the new "Biomedical Corridor". The area outlined in green is the corridor. [L1]

Here is a less detailed view:

What you don't know and don't see is the fact that there was considerable excavation before construction and this entire 68 acre block of land - shown above in green - shares a common underground level. This is a huge secret space and this is where any covert activities and MK Ultra style projects are likely to take place. Also, reportedly, underground tunnels link this area to nearby medical facilities and also to the Orleans Parish prison. The government likes to use prisons for experiments because, obviously, the prisoners can't get out and "outsiders" can't get in [7].

If you want to hear first hand stories about what the government secretly does to US citizens, try to locate the documentary [7] and also watch the free you tube videos by Cathy O'Brien and Sue Ford (Brice Taylor), both "Presidential Model" mind controlled slaves who managed to escape. Don't expect any more survivors to surface. Experts in deprogramming now claim that the government mind control techniques have been perfected to the point that it is no longer possible to reverse the effects and restore the victim to "normal". If they try, a "self destruct" program will automatically activate and the victim will immediately die.

LSU SECTION

The LSU section - the University Medical Center (UMC) - is the replacement for Charity Hospital which ceased operation when hurricane Katrina hit about eleven years ago. It operates using the same basic model that Charity Hospital did years back. The doctors are mainly from Tulane or LSU. However, all doctors and researchers are welcome if they plan to work on some project of interest to the government. They could be from anywhere in North America and possibly elsewhere.

Like Charity Hospital, UMC is certified as a Level 1 trauma center - the highest possible rating. Although Charity Hospital did participate in secret MK Ultra projects, it was a competent and fully functional hospital. It is the same here. You could get legitimate high quality care. Most patients do. However, you could also be "spirited away" - used for some whacky experiment - and never be seen again. This possibility is much less likely, however it definitely does exist.

Here is the layout of UMC. [L1] Obviously, the underground level(s) are not shown or mentioned.

The published cost of UMC is 1.1 Billion dollars. The state of Louisiana constantly claims it is broke and so it is difficult to understand how they would pay for this. It is more likely they had "help".

The Dog Story

We have mentioned this before, but it deserves repeating. A friend knew a doctor who had won awards for his "research on eyes using dogs". My friend had a dog which appeared to have some eye issues. She knew the doctor and ran into him at a party. She asked for advise on her dog. His reply left her speechless. He said, "Dogs? I don't know anything about dogs. We don't use dogs. We use niggers. Niggers are better than dogs".

Apparently, "dogs" is the medical code word for African Americans. Obviously, you can't publish research reports in which you admit you killed US Citizens to prove some point. So, to get recognition in the medical community, you write the report using the code word "dogs". Everyone in the profession knows what that means.

So, if you wonder why New Orleans was selected for this huge, expensive, medical complex, you might want to consider the fact that well over 90% of the residents of New Orleans are black.

VA SECTION

This is the current layout of the VA section: [L1] The published cost is one billion dollars. However, you need to realize that money has no meaning to the Federal Government because it can print money in unlimited quantities whenever it pleases. Actually this "fiat" money has no value at all and is not even worth the paper on which it is printed. People are programmed to believe money has value and, as long as they believe that, it will continue to have value to "the believers". Should this belief ever "evaporate", so will the US dollar.

CENTRAL ENERGY PLANT

Little is known about this facility. However, it should be noted that, if you join the military, you must "sign your physical body over to the government". In other words, they own you and they can do anything they want to you and you have no choice in the matter. They can give you any drugs they want, put chips in your brain, microchip you or do anything else they happen to dream up. You are now government property.

For example, no one wanted to take the anti malaria drug Lariam - which is known to cause insanity. However, soldiers were forced to line up every morning while the pills were forced upon them.

Phase II

University Medical Center is complete, however the VA section has plans to expand. The existing complex occupies 31 acres. Once the expansion is complete, railroad tracks will pass through the facility and one of the high volume sewerage canals will pass under the facility

ACCESS AND SECURITY

The level of security at the University Medical Center is on a par with that used at highly classified government installations. To begin with, there is a small army of armed guards. They are everywhere. There are two armed guards in every room. In fact, they may be more guards than "legitimate" hospital staff.

The hospital uses the latest surveillance technology. When you drive into the complex, your license plate is scanned and identified. Other hidden cameras look into the vehicle and try to identify you with sophisticated facial recognition software. If you are an "unknown", armed guards will immediately surround you and demand to know who you are and why you are here. Once they ID you, your picture will be added to the government facial recognition database. Beyond that point, hidden cameras will follow you wherever you go and create a log of your activities. All of this stuff is not only very expensive but it is restricted and not available on the open market.

The doctors apparently prefer to be anonymous. Obviously, you have seen "normal" doctors with their white coats with their name sewn in and clearly visible. Not here. The white coats are blank.

All staff carry ID cards with RFID chips. All doors will only open if they recognize the chip ID. You can't go anywhere without this. Nothing - not even bathrooms - will be accessible. It is logical to assume, considering how such facilities are compartmentalized, that the code on your ID card determines where you are allowed to go. Also, your movements are likely logged in the security system.

Clearly, this is not your everyday "hospital".

POWER SYSTEM

UMC does not use commercial electricity. It generates its own power. Here is a picture of the power generation building: [L1]

There is a good reason for this choice. Commercial electricity in New Orleans is not reliable. There are constant outages. This is because, like other areas of the city's infrastructure, it has not been properly maintained for years. Also, the Sewerage and Water Board discovered - since its sewer pipes are cracked and pretty much useless - that it could covertly evade EPA regulations by pumping sewerage into pipes used by the power company (Entergy). This worked great because these pipes were not broken (yet). However, they were never designed to be filled with sewerage but, rather, to protect the underground 13,800 volt feeder lines. Well, you can guess what happened because water and high voltage just don't get along.

There is, of course, an obvious liability when you depend on creating your own electricity. Should something go wrong with the power center, there would be no power for the 37 acre complex.

There is something quite interesting about this power system. Reportedly, the power system consists of four nuclear reactors. However, they are not standard commercial nuclear reactors. They are the type used on nuclear submarines. Only the US Government - and, specifically, the military - are allowed to possess such devices. These reactors only need to be fueled once every thirty years. Now, there is a slight problem here. This facility is listed as part of LSU (Louisiana State University) and private facilities are not allowed to possess such devices. So, the fact that this facility does is an indication that the "cover story" that this is just a state hospital is false. Clearly, this is a (secret) government facility and what actually goes on there - MK Ultra style human experiments - is also secret. So, at least, this fact alone (the power supply center) should stimulate you to wonder what the real truth is.

WHAT IS THE TRUE PURPOSE OF MEDICAL RESEARCH

Well, it is obviously not to help people live longer, healthier lives. If it was, you would expect life expectancy to increase. However, actually, as covered in Keiser Report #1111 [2], mortality rates are increasing - not decreasing. Could it be that our "modern medicine" and "modern lifestyle" is actually killing us? Search "remote people live 100+ years" and be prepared to be surprised. The more isolated from "civilization" people are, the longer they live.

Actually, "medical research" has nothing to do with keeping you healthy. You are being used as lab rats seek knowledge that will eventually be used to kill most of you and "reengineer" the human race to resemble the society of Huxley's classic book "Brave New World" where people are bred to be "perfect slaves" who are incapable of independent thoughts and are completely content to carry out their slave duties because they simply cannot conceive of any other way to live.

The "intellectuals" who believe they have been "ordained" to plan your life and your future are thrilled at these ideas of some perfect utopian future world. You may disagree, however, no one intends to ask your opinion.

NEW ORLEANS SEWERAGE SYSTEM

New Orleans is literally falling apart. No routine maintenance has been done in well over thirty years. Hurricane Katrina seriously affected the infrastructure and it is considered impossible to repair correctly without literally "replacing the entire city". That's not going to happen. Also, sometime in the next twenty years, global warming will cause New Orleans to be absorbed by the Gulf of Mexico and it will cease to exist. Miami will be next.

Since the politicians know this, they have no plans to do anything except steal as much public money as they can. They "skim" eighty percent of the income they receive from things like property taxes and water bills. Only twenty percent remains to actually fund projects. The rest is secretly squirreled away by the politicians.

New Orleans has actually sunk about seven feet since Katrina. Essentially all the sewerage pipes have cracked. Raw sewerage is now only about one foot below ground level in many places including the French Quarter. Basically, New Orleans is "floating" on a pool of raw sewerage. The "pool" used to be eight feet down but, as we said, the ground has sunk seven feet so now it is only one foot down.

If the system had been maintained properly, obviously, things would be much better. However, it was not and is now beyond any hope of repair. The place is finished.

COVERT DISPOSAL OF HUMAN BODIES

Animals used for research are routinely killed at the conclusion of the project. This is standard scientific protocol. There is no exception for human beings used as lab rats by scientists. In the early days, hospitals and institutions generally burned the test animals in the facilities incinerator. However, today, they kill so many people that the cost of fuel has caused them to search for cheaper alternatives. In New Orleans, for example, there is a network of underground canals for sewerage. They use powerful pumps made over one hundred years ago. They are so old, they use 25 cycle AC power because that was the electrical system in use when they were made. To clean the blades of these pumps, maintenance throws railroad ties into the sewerage flow. When these huge logs reach the blades, they are ground up into toothpick size pieces. So, you can imagine what would happen if a person was dumped into the underground "sewerage river". Also, it just so happens that one of the access points crosses the "New Orleans Biomedical Corridor".

If you travel, take note of the strange proximity of sewerage treatment plants to hospitals. There are just too many of these to be just dismissed as "coincidences".
