THE AGENDA

If you believe that psychiatrists are kind people who help you solve personal problems by talking to you, prepare to be surprised. At one time some psychiatrists actually did this. It was called "psychoanalysis" and was quite time consuming and also quite expensive. However, Dr. Peter Breggin [1] notes that all this changed around the time frame of the late 1960's when the biological model - which is the current model - was introduced. This model asserted that it was useless to talk to patients because their problems were due to some "chemical imbalance" in their brains which could only be corrected with drugs.

You should note some of the candid comments previously made by psychiatrists suggesting the future course of psychiatry which has become reality today:

Dr. Robert Galbraith Heath

"With the use of chemical brain-control agents it may be possible to control the individual and the masses and to do this unobtrusively and without the active cooperation of the victims - not a question for the future - it is here".

The date of this quote is given as November 20, 1966. At this time, Dr. Heath was in charge of the human experiments being conducted at Tulane University under the then top secret MK Ultra project. The source of this quote is the book by Edgar Cayce titled "Edgar Cayce on Atlantis". This book bears a copyright date of 1968. The book cites an interview that Heath gave to a Newspaper called "the Virginia Lighthouse".

Wikipedia [2] [L1] gives a rather concise history of Dr. Heath. It states:

"Dr. Robert Galbraith Heath (9 May 1915 – 24 September 1999) was an American psychiatrist. He followed the theory of biological psychiatry that organic defects were the sole source of mental illness, and that consequently mental problems were treatable by physical means.

Heath founded the Department of Psychiatry and Neurology at Tulane University, New Orleans, in 1949 and remained its chairman until 1980. He performed many experiments there involving electrical stimulation of the brain via surgically implanted electrodes. This work was partially financed by the CIA and the US military.

Heath also experimented with the drug bulbocapnine to induce stupor, using prisoners in the Louisiana State Penitentiary as experimental subjects. He later worked on schizophrenia, which he regarded as an illness with a physical basis.

Dr. George Brock Chisholm

"To achieve world government, it is necessary to remove from the minds of men their individualism, loyalty to family tradition, national patriotism, and religious dogmas."

-February 1946 issue of "Psychiatry"

So, who is this guy? Dr. George Brock Chisholm, 1959 Humanist of the Year and former head of World Health Organization, World Federation for Mental Health Co-Founder

We have discussed this general issue before, however recall that, at the end of W.W.II, the US Government adopted the (secret) plan to take over the world and set up what came to be known as the "New World Order".

One key objective of this plan was the elimination of all world religions to be replaced by "Humanism" which is a philosophical system which denies the existence of God but encourages people to be nice to each other. It is a sort of "Mr.Spock" style "religion" which worships logic and denies the existence of anything beyond physical reality.

Dr. Brock is basically stating that psychiatrists should use their expertise in human behavior to "reprogram" the peoples of the world to conform to their world view and philosophy. Most people have no idea that this is the true agenda of psychiatry.

THE PROPAGANDA

Dr. Peter Breggin [1] states the transition from talking to patients about their issues (psychotherapy) to giving them essentially a "chemical lobotomy" using drugs began in the late 1960's. Previously, such drugs had not been perfected.

In order to justify this "new psychiatry" using chemical mind control, psychiatrists invented the justification that mental illness was caused by a "chemical imbalance in the brain" and that the new drugs were "correcting this chemical imbalance".

There is absolutely no truth to this. It is pure propaganda. Dr. Breggin states that, in reality, psychiatric drugs cause a chemical imbalance where none previously existed.

The argument for adopting this new approach is primarily financial. In the United States, medicine is motivated by a desire for profit. As long as there is profit to be made, what actually happens to patients is irrelevant. Psychiatry prior to the late 1960's used psychotherapy. This could potentially actually help someone work through a problem. However, this was time consuming and did not result in a sizable profit for the psychiatrist. The proposed new approach promised high profits and much less work for the psychiatrist. All the psychiatrist had to do was see someone for a few minutes, put some "label" on them, and then give them drugs. The drugs essentially put the victim in a state of such diminished capacity that it was not possible to think clearly or function effectively. There was then no need to talk about any "problems" because their minds were so degraded they could not think of anything to talk about. Using this technique, you could quickly "process" many more patients and so greatly increase your profit.

The new drugs, of course, were not correcting any "chemical imbalance" since no such imbalance had previously existed. What the drugs were doing was brain damaging the patient and slowly killing them.

The Black Hole in Psychiatric Information

Unless you are involved in psychiatry in some way or have investigated it, you basically know nothing about it. It is as if a "black hole" of some type surrounds this area so that no true knowledge escapes.

You know there are people called "Psychiatrists". You have heard of "mental illness". However, beyond this basic knowledge, you likely know nothing at all. Do you know what psychiatrists actually do. Do you know what they call mental illness. Do you know what goes on behind the walls and locked doors of mental facilities. Do you have any idea what it is like to be given psychiatric drugs or electric shocks to your brain (ECT). Probably not.

This is by design. If you did know, you would likely be horrified. We will do our best to enlighten you in this report.

You can get a good "jump start" by watching the documentary "Psychiatry: Industry of Death" which you can find for free on you tube.

TECHNOLOGY OF PSYCHIATRIC DRUGS

Let's take a look at a few psychiatric drugs and explain how they affect people. We will start with three of the original drugs known as "phenothiazines". Scientists began experimenting with the deadly poison phenothiazine which was being used as a pesticide. They liked it because it could cross the "blood - brain barrier" which is a natural defense mechanism to protect the brain from harm. They reasoned that they could use phenothiazine to get dangerous chemicals into people's brains which would otherwise be naturally blocked.

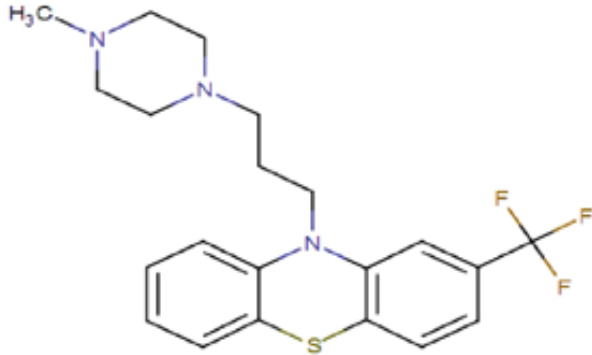

We will look at three of the original phenothiazines, thioridazine (Mellaril), chlorpromazine (Thorazine) and trifluoperazine (Stelazine). By using these three chemicals, you can totally destroy a person.

Thioridazine (Mellaril) is a sterility agent. It makes both men and women sterile. In men, it prevents ejaculation. In women, it totally shuts down the reproductive system and monthly periods cease. If given to a prepubescent female, it can leave the girl permanently sterile even if she later stops taking the drug.

Chlorpromazine (Thorazine) destroys physical energy and leaves the victim incapable of any meaningful physical resistance.

Trifluoperazine (Stelazine) is called an "antipsychotic". However, it is more accurate to call it "anti-psyhic". It is designed to destroy a person's Spiritual abilities. Let's take a closer look at how this drug works.

This is the structural diagram for this chemical:

Notice the three fluorine atoms in an active binding position. Fluoride destroys the pineal gland by causing it to calcify and cease to function. The pineal gland is the physical link to the third eye in the Astral body which is designed to allow people to access other realities and dimensions. Conventional psychiatry denies that these things exist. Of course, they do exist. So, to make sure ordinary people never realize their true Spiritual potential, the government wants to make sure this ability is neutralized. Adding fluoride to drinking water ruins the psychic abilities of most people but not all. Those who escape need stronger poison.

The purpose appears to be a deliberate attempt to prevent natural Spiritual evolution to a new density because such evolution would render the current ruling establishment powerless.

Therefore, by giving someone these three drugs, you can effectively reduce the person to some type of subhuman creature which can be trained and controlled like, for example, a pet dog. This is what psychiatrists want.

Now, let's look at one of the newer drugs, haloperadol (Haldol). This drug is designed to kill. Below is a picture of a catalog you were never meant to see: [L1]

This catalog is for research chemists and it actually tells the truth about chemicals. If you read the drug company literature on Haldol, it will say that the mechanism of action is not understood. This is all that most people know and all that the government feels you "need to know". So, let's have a look at the truth:

J61688	Haloperidol [52-86-8], $C_{21}H_{23}ClFNO_2$, F.W. 375.86, Powder, Merck 14,4598, UN2811, EINECS 200-155-6, RTECS EU1575000, MDL MFCD00051423	5g 67.10 25g 270.00

Application(s): An antagonist for D2, D3, and D4 dopamine receptors that induces apoptosis of neurons in the striatum of rats

Before we go on please note the "skull and crossbones" symbol.

Now, what do you think "apoptosis" means. It means this:

Apoptosis Reagents

Apoptosis is a highly regulated programmed cell death. It is a critical part of normal cell development, immunity and wound repair. Abnormalities in apoptosis can lead to a variety of pathologies including cancer and neurodegenerative disease. At least three major pathways are known to initiate apoptosis and the choice of the correct apoptosis reagent depends on which of these pathways you desire to activate. This list contains reagents that are commonly used in apoptosis protocols.

It means "programmed cell death" IN YOUR BRAIN. Doesn't seem too "therapeutic", does it?

These are some other apoptosis agents from this catalog:

- Epirubicin hydrochloride
- Etoposide
- Evodiamine
- Farnesol, mixture of isomers, 96%
- Haloperidol
- Harmol
- Honokiol, 98+%

Now you may begin to see why statistical evidence shows that people who take these drugs die about 25 years sooner than expected. They are being deliberately poisoned.

REALITY TESTING

Science has strict guidelines. One reason science emerged and developed an adversarial relationship with religion was because religion, which emerged first, was dominated by leaders who asserted they knew absolute truth but provided no evidence. Science opposed this idea. They argued that predictable events must be supported by evidence and also be consistent. Therefore, if one scientist somewhere in the world writes out a set of instructions which lead to a specific outcome, then all scientists everywhere should be able to follow those instructions and obtain identical results. If they cannot, then the scientific theory is invalid.

Reality testing of psychiatry fails this test. There have been quite a few documentaries done in which the same person - wearing a hidden camera and microphone - goes to different psychiatrists and tells each one the exact same thing. In all the reality tests, the answers from each psychiatrist are different and no two answers match. One example is given in the documentary, "Psychiatry: Industry of Death", which is available free on YouTube.

Since psychiatry fails the test of science and, therefore, is not a valid science, what is it? The closest model which would accurately describe psychiatry would be some kind of religious or similar belief system. Sharia law would be a good comparison. There is no such thing as a Sharia law book. Sharia law is invented from case to case based upon some Imam's personal interpretation of the Quran. Consequently, given identical circumstances, one Imam might say, "You did a bad thing - please don't do it again" and a different Imam might say, "You did a bad thing and now your hand must be amputated".

This is how psychiatry works. There is a book of general guidelines called the DSM (Diagnostic and Statistical Manual) which, for psychiatrists, is the equivalent of the Quran. It vaguely identifies world views, lifestyles, philosophies and beliefs which are considered to either be right or wrong just like the Quran. However, each individual psychiatrist must interpret these guides in a way he/she feels is correct. Consequently, no two psychiatrists will reach the same conclusion from identical facts unless they know each other and consult on the conclusion. In that case, they will agree to show solidarity and support the illusion that they are "scientists".

Ordinary physical medicine, of course, is completely different. If you have, for example, high blood pressure, any doctor you see will diagnose this. There is no guesswork because this is a real science. Something either exists or it does not.

SEARCHING FOR LEGAL AUTHORITY

When someone is abducted by a psychiatrist, they are forced to take poisons (called drugs) which (1) make them sterile; (2) cause permanent brain damage; (3) kill them by artificially shortening their lives by 25 years [10].

Where does this authority come from. How can this be legal. Well, actually, it is not. It has the appearance of legality due to vagueness and the assumption that doctors are good people and are incapable of harming people because they took the Hippocratic Oath to "do no harm".

Let's pause here to discuss the Brady Precedent [5]. Recall Brady was the man shot during the assassination attempt on President Regan years ago. Brady recently died - 30+ years later. The coroner ruled his death to be homicide because his life ended prematurely due to the injury. This precedent means that when anyone who has been previously deliberately injured by someone somewhere in the past finally dies, the death can be ruled homicide and the person(s) responsible for the injury can be charged with murder. It is a statistical fact that psychiatric drugs shorten the victim's life. This cannot be denied. Therefore, under this precedent, psychiatrists could be charged with premeditated murder whenever anyone they have forced to take a psychiatric drug dies.

Legitimate murder cases are difficult and expensive to prosecute. The accused has many rights. In fact, they have so many rights that it is much easier and cheaper for prosecutors to negotiate some lesser charge. Also, in the case of a conviction, no judge can order a person put to death. This decision can only be made by a jury during what is called the "penalty phase" of the trial.

When a judge orders someone to take psychiatric drugs, he is ordering them put to death. This authority does not exist - for any judge under any circumstances. So, how and why does this happen. It happens because of vagueness and the general public ignorance about psychiatric drugs. Generally, the judge's order only states that the person must receive "treatment". The assumption is that this is somehow both beneficial and safe. Of course, both perceptions are wrong.

If a judge specifically stated in a order things like:

1. I order you to be chemically sterilized
2. I order your life shortened by 25 years
3. I order you to be brain damaged.

then this order would be clearly illegal. There would be no question. However, this is what the judge is actually ordering. He is just not stating it in plain language. Since most people don't know what psychiatrists actually do to people, they have been getting away - literally - with murder for years.

Only some type of general public "awakening" would change this.

WHERE HAVE WE SEEN THIS BEFORE

History is filled with situations of mass "culling" of people because they were "thinking incorrectly" according to some authority figure.

In the Catholic Inquisition [6], for example, you were supposed to say, among other things, that the bread and wine used at religious ceremonies actually became the body and blood of Christ. If you said it did not, you were burned at the stake. Millions were killed. So, anyone thinking "scientifically" at that time likely had a short life and an unhappy end.

There have been many Crusades and Inquisitions in recorded history. Many millions have died for "incorrect thoughts".

Today, psychiatry represents the modern version of these previous atrocities. Basically, psychiatry is a state sponsored program of genocide against specific targeted populations. The DSM is the list of those classes of people who are to be exterminated. Psychiatrists believe that about 25% of the population are somehow mentally unfit and, in the US, unless they are stopped, they intend to murder about eighty million US citizens.

Psychiatry operates similar to witchcraft trials. You are presumed guilty unless you can prove you are innocent. No one can prove you are a witch. Similarly, you cannot prove you are not a witch. However, since you are presumed guilty once accused (exact opposite of normal US justice), you are always found guilty.

TYPICAL PSYCHIATRIC OPERATIONS

Here we wish to discuss briefly how psychiatrists operate. Details could easily fill many volumes. However, we can cover the basics.

To begin, the theoretical function of psychiatry is to cure mental illness. So, just how successful are they. Well, according to the documentary [8], the answer is zero - zilch. Absolute no one has ever been cured. Robert Whitaker [9] uses statistical evidence in his book to show that people with problems who rely on support from friends often recover but if those same people go to a psychiatrist they essentially never recover.

Since psychiatry is not curing people, exactly what is it doing. Well, basically, it is deliberately destroying lives and making a huge profit in the process.

Once you are stamped with some "label" by a psychiatrist, you are marked for death. This label, essentially, is a death warrant. You are going to be killed by slow poison. Psychiatrists give everyone drugs. These drugs have been shown to shorten a person's life by about 25 years [10] which qualifies as homicide under the Brady Precedent [5]. So, psychiatrists are murderers sanctioned by the state and licensed to kill.

Regardless of how you may find yourself in a relationship with a psychiatrist as a patient, you can never leave. If you attempt to do so, the psychiatrist can have you arrested and tortured in some institution until you agree to submit. Only their "opinion" is needed to have you abducted. No evidence. No trial. No rights. You just "disappear". And, all the records are sealed under medical secrecy laws (HIPPA) and you can't see them.

Let's pause here to cite a couple of examples:

Karen Wetmore - 13 yo female - Dr. Green [4]

Karen was hospitalized against her will. She was accused of being "depressed" after she was sexually abused (who wouldn't be). Her doctor, Dr. Green, came highly recommended by the government. The documentary does not mention that "Dr. Green" was the new identity given to Dr. Josef Mengele [11] (The Angel of Death) after he was secretly brought to the US under Operation Paperclip.

He had, shall we say, a unique bedside manner. He told Karen, "no matter how you scream - no matter what you say - no one is going to come". And, no one came - not even her parents. Dr. Green had ordered "no visitors" supposedly "for her own good". She was tortured for years and tells her story in the documentary [4]. She was tortured, among other methods, with the drug Metrazol. It is said that the Soviets used it on POW's and they would say or do anything to avoid a second dose. The effects were that terrible. Psychiatrists in the US were free to use Metrazol to torture people until 1982 when the FDA revoked approval for its use.

The boy from LSU - June 2011 - accused of being drunk and rowdy at a party

According to his girlfriend, the police took him to Southeast Louisiana Hospital. He was only there a few weeks but that was enough to totally ruin his life. The doctors there at that time had either participated in or were familiar with the techniques used in the MK Ultra experiments. When released, his girlfriend located him. However, he was no longer capable of having sex and showed no emotion. When asked "what happened at the hospital", he simply went blank. The torture had been so intense that he dare not remember. Eventually, she gave up. He was no longer a human being. Extremely powerful drugs are available today with terrible side effects [7].

Briefly, the typical sequence of events once someone has been "stamped" by a psychiatrist are as follows:

1. Initial torture and dehumanization in some institution. This is to mentally break you so you will submit to what will follow. You will be drugged. A guard will be standing close armed with a taser. You will understand that, if you do not voluntarily take the poison, you will be electrocuted with the taser and forcibly injected with the poison. So, you will likely submit.

You will begin to experience the various "side effects" [7] that will be with you for the rest of your life. There will be akathisia - an inner restlessness which never subsides. It will be with you every day - 24 hours a day - for the rest of your life. There will also be drug induced "stress positions" such as being unable to close your mouth (it will be stretched open as wide as possible) and loss of control of your eyes which will constantly look upwards as high as possible. These stress positions - although chemically induced - are equivalent to the physical stress positions used by the US to torture prisoners (enhanced interrogation).

2. Once mentally broken, you will be released into the custody of some type of outpatient facility. You will be expected to take drugs for the rest of your life. If you refuse, you can be arrested for refusing drugs. The "experts" will design a "treatment plan" for you. You will not be consulted. The treatment plan is essentially a blueprint for the rest of your life and can specify who you can and cannot associate with, where you can work if you work, where you may travel and, everything you either must do or forbidden to do. If you violate the plan, you will be arrested and tortured until you submit. This will continue until you die.

Methods of Persuasion

Mind control drugs are the primary control method, however there are others. In order to insure you are never able to regain independence, it is necessary to control your resources. Most patients today qualify for government benefits as disabled. This is their money and is designed to help them survive and have some level of independence. Psychiatrists don't want this. Therefore, they will try to persuade you to make one of their people your "representative payee" so that your government checks go to them. Then, you will be under their financial control. You don't have to do this but psychiatrists can try to force you by threatening to have your money cut off if you do not obey. It's a lie. They can't. They can't even see your social security records unless you are stupid enough to give them permission. However, the brainwashing drugs are designed to destroy your free will so many submit.

Next, they like to get you into some type of housing that they control. Now, they have your money and control your food and shelter too. You can't do anything without their knowledge and permission. This is what they want. The deeper you fall into the trap, the harder it will be to escape.

Now, all this is expensive. And, the bill for all this eventually gets paid for by the government. Meanwhile, psychiatrists are making a fortune even though they have never cured a single person [8]. The more people they can put some label on, the more money they can make. They eventually kill everyone they "treat" with their slow poisons. However, that's irrelevant. All that counts is maximizing profit.

INFORMATION DISEASE

The term "information disease" was popular in the 1980's. Since then, it has gradually dropped out of general use but the basic concept is still valid. Essentially, information disease means that people can suffer emotional harm if they are somehow led to believe that two conflicting concepts are both true. Since they obviously cannot, there is an inner conflict in the affected person. Here we will discuss some common conflicts that can easily land you in some mental institution and ruin your life unless you understand them.

The Third Eye

Everyone has a third eye. It is invisible in this dimension because it is part of your Astral body which everyone also has and which is also invisible in this dimension to most people. If your third eye is activated, you can see and communicate with other dimensions while fully awake and looking at this dimension with your regular two eyes. Although this is a perfectly natural ability and everyone has it, in our society, most people are completely unaware that it exists. Consequently, if some combination of events - like, for example, a situation which would require you to stay alert and go without sleep for a long period - causes your third eye to open, you will see some alien scene. If you have no idea what has happened and have the misfortune to mention this to a psychiatrist or someone who will turn you in to a psychiatrist, you could be locked away for life.

You can learn about your third eye and how to activate it by searching "third eye" on the internet. However, since this information has been censored from the "mainstream", most people do not know anything about this and likely never will.

Astral Projection

Everyone has an Astral body. This body will likely be your primary body when your physical body dies. Although essentially everyone Astrally projects every night when they sleep, most remain totally unaware of this. However, if you should find yourself in your Astral body - which can travel in time and also to other dimensions - and you have no idea what has happened or what is going on, you could find yourself locked away by some psychiatrist. Psychiatrists call Astral projection "disassociation" and consider it to be an illness. Of course, it is perfectly normal and most people can learn to do it and retain the memories. However, this knowledge, if generally known, would seriously disrupt our materialistic society. Therefore, the information is suppressed.

However, you can search "Astral projection" on the internet, learn all about it and even find teachers who will train you. Please be cautious, however, because many of these self proclaimed experts are fakes.

The Kundalini

Again, this is something everyone has. It is part of every human body. This is a source of tremendous energy which generally remains dormant for your entire life. If, however, some random combination of events should cause the Kundalini to "awaken" and you are unprepared, you will likely be unable to handle the high energy and so will be certified insane and locked away - usually forever.

You can learn about "Kundalini" by searching on the internet. There are legitimate Kundalini masters and Kundalini Yoga is a legitimate yoga path. If you study under a true Kundalini master, you can activate your hidden powers safely because a legitimate master can protect you and compensate for anything that might go wrong. For Kundalini, you really need a physical association with a true master. If you experiment on your own or take some kind of mail order or internet course where a real master is not physically available to help you, you could find yourself in great danger. Again, beware of fakes. This is serious stuff.

EXTRA JUDICIAL PROCESS

Psychiatry is an extra judicial system which essentially copies the criminal justice system. However, in the psychiatric system, all constitutional safeguards have been removed. Therefore, people "disappeared" into this extra judicial copy of the legitimate US justice system have essentially no rights and also no hope of exiting the system. They are generally held prisoners for life.

Lets compare the rights of the accused in the two systems:

STANDARD US JUSTICE SYSTEM	PSYCHIATRY
PRESUMED INNOCENT UNLESS PROVEN GUILTY	PRESUMED GUILTY UNLESS YOU CAN PROVE INNOCENCE
RIGHT TO CONFRONT AND QUESTION WITNESSES AGAINST YOU	WITNESSES TESTIFY IN SECRET - IDENTITY CONFIDENTIAL
RIGHT TO KNOW CHARGES AGAINST YOU	NO RIGHTS - YOU ARE TOO SICK TO KNOW CHARGES - CONFIDENTIAL
RIGHT TO AN ATTORNEY	VARIES FROM STATE TO STATE - NO FEDERAL RIGHT TO ATTORNEY
RIGHT NOT TO BE ABUSED WHILE IN CUSTODY	NO RIGHTS - DRUGS, TORTURE, ABUSE AT DISCRETION OF DOCTOR
IF CONVICTED, SPECIFIC TIME OF SENTENCE SPECIFIED	IF CONVICTED, AUTOMATICALLY SENTENCED FOR LIFE

Now, let's compare the nomenclature used in the two systems:

STANDARD US JUSTICE SYSTEM	PSYCHIATRY
JAIL	HOSPITAL
PAROLE	CONDITIONAL DISCHARGE
PAROLE OFFICER	AFTERCARE CLINIC
INMATE	PATIENT

Also, in the psychiatric system, there is no constitutional protection from cruel and inhuman treatment. In fact, there are no constitutional protections at all. Psychiatrists are free to do anything they please.

Psychiatry provides the government, oligarchs and other influential people with a sort of "back door" they can use to eliminate anyone they wish without charging them with some type of crime which would involve the accused having the right to defend himself at a public trial and would also likely result in unwanted publicity. By using the extra judicial psychiatric system, unwanted or undesirable people simply "disappear" and all records are secret under the medical secrecy (HIPPA) laws. There is no publicity and also no chance of retaliation since the victim will be held for life with no possibility of escape. For oligarchs, it is a dream come true.

USING PSYCHIATRY TO LEGALLY STEAL AND KILL

Murder

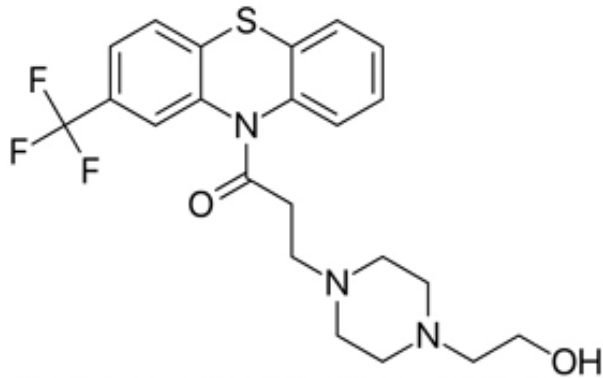

Murder of the elderly using Olanzapine (Zyprexa)

Attorney Mitchell R. Jensen states in the documentary [1] that nursing home patients are routinely being murdered with the drug Zyprexa. Zyprexa is not FDA approved for use in people over 65. Obviously, most nursing home patients would be over 65 years old. Jensen states the nurses and staff like to use this drug because patients become calm and don't cause problems. Of course, this is because they have been poisoned and are dying. Although the patients appear outwardly calm, they are suffering terribly internally and Jensen remarks that they suffer a horrible death.

Just because a drug is not FDA approved for some use does not mean it cannot be used. If a drug is approved to be sold on the US market, a doctor is free to use it as he pleases. This is called using the drug "off label" because it has not been officially approved for the way it is being used. However, apparently, this is not a crime. Clearly, it is common knowledge within the profession that Zyprexa will kill elderly people. However, there is no indication that any doctor has been charged with murder for doing this even though the FDA literature warns against this and the doctor clearly knows he is committing premeditated murder when he does this.

Murder using Fluphenazine (Prolixin) Decanoate

Fluphenazine is a phenothiazine based drug and has similar structural characteristics to trifluoperazine (Stelazine) with the three fluorine atoms. Here is its structural diagram:

Scientists found a way to modify this drug so as to make it practically insoluble in water. It is dissolved in sesame oil. Because of this, once injected into a person, it gradually gets into their system over a period of two to three weeks. Psychiatrists love this drug because they can get a judge to order some person to take drugs for life and then inject them with this stuff so that they cannot escape drugging. They can then be released into the community but, of course, have no meaningful life because of the "chemical lobotomy" effects of the drug. If they fail to report every couple of weeks for another shot of poison, they can be arrested and drugged by force.

Now, coincidentally, this drug is supplied in a 5cc bottle containing 125 Mg, of the drug. For the average adult, 150 Mg. is a lethal dose. Normally, the victim is shot up with 3cc or 75Mg. every two weeks. It is assumed that, by the time the next dose is given, the amount of drug in the victim's system has fallen below 50 Mg. However, if someone's metabolism is slower than normal, the second shot could raise the drug level in their system to 150 Mg, which is a lethal dose.

I am familiar with a young man who was killed this way. I knew him and his mother and sister. One day at home he complained of being very cold. His mother brought him a blanket, however, when she checked again, he was dead. I explained to his mother and sister that he had been murdered by the mental health clinic. He was under court ordered drugging and, the next day, the clinic called to say that he had failed to report in for his shot and they were notifying the police to arrest him. When told he had died they simply said, "OK, never mind then" and refused to discuss the matter further citing medical secrecy laws. The coroner ruled the death "undetermined" so there was nothing they could do. Coroners have a unique status in law. There is no legal procedure to appeal or otherwise challenge what a coroner writes on a death certificate. Whatever he says is final.

There are no statistics on just how many people have been killed by this drug. However, it is quite popular and, therefore, the murder rate is likely quite high. Obviously, toxicology does not test for this chemical when investigating to determine a cause of death.

Theft

The legal process known as "interdiction" or "guardianship" allows someone to have a person stripped of all his citizenship rights so that he becomes, effectively, an "unperson". The "guardian" then gets control of all the person's property and also the right to make decisions for the victim since he is no longer considered to be a legal person.

To illustrate this process, we will use the example of Tom Benson (search using the phrase "tom benson interdiction" for the latest internet data) who is the owner of the New Orleans Saints and the richest man in Louisiana with an estimated net worth of about two billion dollars. Although Mr.Benson's assets represent a lifetime of work, he could lose everything with the stroke of a pen.

It seems some of Benson's relatives would like that two billion for themselves. So, they filed papers for his interdiction. So far, they have been unsuccessful but plan to continue to try. In this process, Benson must report to three psychiatrists. If two out of three say they feel he is incompetent, he instantly loses everything he owns and his "guardian" can do anything they want with him.

Therefore, a possible unfavorable outcome could see all of Benson's assets quickly liquidated and the cash quickly moved outside of the US (Turks and Caicos islands are a favorite place). Then his guardian could order him locked in a nursing home - order that no visitors be allowed to see him - order the doctor to give him Zyprexa so that he will quickly die - and make off with the money scott free. And, it is all completely legal!

Tom Benson is, of course, a high profile example. This is why it is widely reported on the internet. However, essentially anyone can use this process to steal the property of another person. It is a very common technique and is used all the time.

CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUES AND RELIGIOUS ARGUMENTS.

No World Religion Would Exist Today if Psychiatrists Were Present When it was Founded

Suppose psychiatrists were wondering about the Earth when today's major religions were being formed. What would have happened to the founders?

Jesus Christ claimed to be from a "Kingdom not of this world" and to have "special powers" and to be God's son. Well, psychiatrists are atheists so the "God's son claim" would have finished him off immediately. Even today, anyone who claims to be the reincarnation of Christ (recall he did promise to return) is immediately arrested, labeled "paranoid schizophrenic" and locked away. Claiming to have "special powers" is considered "delusions of grandeur" and also gets you labeled paranoid schizophrenic. And, of course, since nothing exists beyond physically observable things, claiming to be from some "invisible otherworldly Kingdom" is obviously madness. So, the psychiatrist would have likely said, "Lobotomy is clearly indicated - fetch my sharpest bone ice pick so I can cure this deranged fellow". So, Christianity would have never existed and Jesus would have been rendered a mindless vegetable.

The Prophet Muhammad - peace be upon him - would have had a problem from the beginning because the original psychiatric guidebook, "Outlines for Psychiatric Examinations" by Nolan Lewis recommends that "letigious persons, reformers and prophets" be labeled "paranoid". However, it gets better because Muhammad was illiterate and so he dictated what would become the Holy Quran to someone who could create a written record. Wikipedia [12] states, "Muslims believe the Quran was verbally revealed by God to Muhammad through the angel Gabriel". Well, that sounds like "hearing voices". So the resident psychiatrist would have ordered psychosurgery and Muhammad would have likely died in the process and the Holy Quran would have never existed. Also, believing in "angels" is also a mental illness because they cannot be seen and so cannot possibly exist.

Joseph Smith - founder of Mormonism: Instructions from an invisible angel (hallucinations) to look for mysterious tablets no one else ever saw (delusions) and translate them using magic stones (impossible). Well, clearly he would have been locked away in some dungeon somewhere and no one today would know he ever existed.

However, there were no psychiatrists lurking around back then and so the resulting religious movements originated without their interference and continue to thrive today.

US Constitution Amendment I

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

Psychiatry clearly violates the "free exercise" provision because the drugs psychiatrists force upon them make Spiritual meditation impossible. For one thing, the effect known as akathisia - an inner restlessness which never subsides - will prevent entering a meditative state. Also, psychiatric drugs cause Astral damage which will render your Astral body useless. This, incidently, is why psychiatric patients cannot experience pleasure or other emotional states. The Astral body is also known as the "emotional body".

Psychiatry also violates other key constitutional guarantees. The major drugs - at the levels commonly used - cause sterility. Also, deliberately causing premature death violates the "right to life" constitutional guarantee.

These are serious violations. However, for some unknown reason, no advocate or patients rights organization has ever raised these issues before the Supreme Court. Should this ever happen, the practice of the current form of "biological model psychiatry" would likely be ruled unconstitutional.

Spiritual Damage

We need to address the issue of Spiritual damage. You are an immortal creature. Your physical body is simply a "container" for your immortal Soul to use to have experiences in this density (plane or dimension). Generally, when you die and therefore lose your physical container, you then use your Astral or "light" body and continue your existence on one of the Astral planes. Psychiatric drugs damage your Astral body by, basically, punching holes in it. If you do what psychiatrists want and continue taking their drugs until you die, your Astral body will be so damaged that you could well find yourself wondering the Earth as a disembodied Spirit or ghost for thousands of years since you will not have the energy to ascend into the Astral planes. Even if you get there, since you have made no Spiritual progress here because the psychiatric drugs have prevented this, you will have to repeat this lifetime and hopefully avoid psychiatrists in your next physical incarnation. What psychiatrists do is generally considered "black magic". It is a Spiritual crime and an attack against the will of God. It is the highest level of crime that it is possible to commit. However since psychiatrists are athiests and believe God is a delusion, they continue merrily on their way with no concerns about this at all. However, you should be very concerned because your future progress will be seriously impared for perhaps millions of years.

WAITING FOR TOBACCO MOMENT

RECAP

Let's briefly go over what we have learned:

1. Mental illnesses, unlike physical illnesses, do not come into existence due to any scientific process. Instead, they are voted into existence at the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association.
2. There is no scientific test for any of the over 300 mental illnesses listed in the DSM.
3. No one diagnosed with a mental illness has ever been cured [8].
4. The drugs given to mental patients do not cure them. However, they do generally leave them sterile, cause brain damage, cause brain shrinkage (confirmed by autopsies), cause a state of diminished capacity so that the affected person cannot effectively function physically or mentally AND shorten the person's lifespan by about 25 years which qualifies as premeditated murder under the Brady Precedent [5].

Why does this exist

It appears that human beings have some innate need to dislike and possibly attack any other person or group who is somehow different. There is evidence of this throughout recorded history. It has led to wars, crusades and various inquisitions. It exists even on a smaller scale among individuals. Agent provocateurs employed by governments and other special interest groups use this knowledge to promote chaos for their benefit.

Psychiatry allows anyone to get rid of someone they don't like by pointing out that they are somehow different and so may be mentally ill and need to be taken away for "treatment". It would be socially unacceptable to walk up to someone and say, "I hate you. I wish you were dead". However it is perfectly acceptable to say, "You are acting different. You need to be taken for a mental health evaluation".

Some groups who were previously hunted down and tortured - specifically gays and lesbians (LGBT) - have been removed from the list of people who can be legally persecuted and now have legal protection to live out their lives as they please without fear of persecution. However other groups - specifically muslims - who were previously free to peacefully exist without fear of harassment have now been demonized and are blamed for essentially anything bad that may happen.

The people of Earth need to grow up and understand that there are many paths in life. Just because you and your friends have common beliefs does not mean that everyone else who believes something else is your enemy. If you got to know them instead of fearing them or - worse - wanting to kill them, you might learn something. You probably don't know this, but there have been relationships between governments and aliens (ET's) for many years now. Obviously, they are different. How can you ever expect to advance and take your place as a citizen of the Universe - which you are - if you continue to cling to these attitudes. Grow up!

Understanding psychiatry - understanding that it is a false and invalid science - will end this nightmare. You need to investigate. There is lots of literature out there and if you research honestly, you will conclude that psychiatry is bunk and has inflicted terrible harm upon humanity, making a tremendous profit in the process of spreading lies which have no scientific merit and developing "drugs" which are basically chemical warfare agents specifically created to destroy peoples lives. Psychiatry operates in the shadows. It cannot exist in the light. Should the truth about its methods and practices become common knowledge, it would cease to exist.
